Earth motion, undulations, seismograph recordings, titlings from the underworld, and other messages from the caverns deep, dark and foreboding, came rumbling into my bedroom about 1:45 Saturday morning, and anybody knows that's an unearthly hour to get up, but I did, and informed the tenant in the next room that we had a visitor and his name was earthquake. "Yep, I know it," was the laconic reply. "Tell him to go 'way and let me sleep." And that's what we think of callers at 1:45 a. m. Saturdays, or on any other morning same hour.

And then there was the carpenter who took a rule with him to the contract bridge club.

Two Marysville men became involuntary members of the nudist colony. They were traveling cross-country. Decided to swim a stream to save distance. Tied their clothes into a neat bundle and heaved them toward the opposite shore, which was a neat trick if they did it but they didn't. The shore was too far away and the current carried the clothes down stream. They hiked to their car but the key was in the clothes going down the river. And the nearest town ten miles away, and snow every foot of the way.

21 INJURED IN WEEK-END ACCIDENTS

Though death took another week-end holiday, 21 persons were sped to hospitals with injuries ranging from shock to skull fractures as the result of eight crack-ups scattered over the county.

Mrs. Mary A. Jones, 87, and Mrs. W. A. Jones, mother and wife, respectively, of Riverside county's hospital superintendent, and Mrs. Dora Rayburn, mother of Riverside Sheriff Carl Rayburn, were injured in the most spectacular of the week-end accidents shortly before noon today.

Their car, driven by the younger Mrs. Jones, turned over two miles north of Irvine station this morning when a rear tire blew out. The elderly Mrs. Jones sustained critical injuries that may prove fatal, but the two younger women escaped with shock and bruises.

The women were taken from the overturned car by County Clerk B. J. Smith, who happened to be driving by the scene of the wreck, and all three were rushed to the county hospital in Orange County Ambulance Service cars.

Fay Carney, 38, of Glendale, sustained a fractured jaw and Mildred Martin, 37, 106 Opal street, Balboa, received a possible fractured pelvis in an accident involving cars driven by Vic Chatten, 152 Rochester street, Costa Mesa, and Laurence Martin when they side-swiped in a head-on collision on Newport boulevard Saturday night. Both drivers sustained minor injuries.

Officer Herman Lenz of the California Highway Patrol sustained scratches and bruises from a "freak" accident on Artesia boulevard, one mile north of Buena Park. He had stopped his car to locate a traffic violator when another car, driven by Dorothy DeBuxton, 352 Olive street, Norwalk, drove up behind the patrol car for an inquiry. Another car, driven by an intoxicated man, swerved into the DeBuxton car, knocking Officer Lenz to the pavement.

Nathan Weiss, Los Angeles, was taken to the Community hospital, Los Angeles, for treatment of injuries sustained in a crash with a parked automobile on the coast highway last night.

Jack Barker, 215 East Birch, Santa Ana, was injured last night when his automobile hit a bridge.

Allen Hadell, 109 Edwood road, Santa Ana, and his companion, Lola Marie Hamilton, 1804 West Fourth street, Santa Ana, were taken by a passing motorist to the Santa Ana Valley hospital for treatment after their car, driven by Hadell, left the Newport boulevard road and struck an electric pole around 11 o'clock Saturday night.

Friends Checked In Bay Slaying

OAKLAND, (AP)—Police checked a list of acquaintances of Mrs. Ruth A. Minto, victim of a paving-brick slaying, today after releasing one man suspect.

The 38-year-old widow was fatally beaten early Saturday by a man, who witnesses said, struck her with the brick after dragging her along an Oakland street.

WASHINGTON, (AP)—President Roosevelt sent to the senate today the nominations of Mary Briggs to be postmaster of Los Angeles.

Cedillo Kin, 11 Followers Die in Fight

MEXICO CITY, (AP)—The defense ministry announced today that Hipolito Cedillo, nephew of the rebel leader, Gen. Saturnino Cedillo, had been killed, with 11 followers, in a clash with government troops yesterday near Lazurita, in southeastern San Luis Potosi state.

The ministry said Hipolito Cedillo was heading a rebel band of 150 men.

This group clashed with a column of the government's 35th cavalry regiment.

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Mexico-bound tourists are being advised by the American consul at the border city of Nuevo Laredo to delay their trip for a few days "because of conflicting rumors" regarding reported movements against President Cardenas at San Luis Potosi, the state department said today.

Consul Romyne Wormuth of New York is taking this action as a result of a suggestion from American Consul General James B. Stewart at Mexico City, the department said.

RILEY HOME, VOTES TODAY

Supervisor Harry D. Riley of Anaheim was back from the wars in Washington today, and found himself holding the whip hand in the board's battle with Dist. Atty. W. F. Menton.

Riley may be asked to cast the deciding vote tomorrow on efforts for flood work, which Chairman Willard Smith is opposing the move. Since a four-man vote is required by law for such employment, Riley holds the deciding vote. He has been in Washington, attempting to hurry $200,000 in federal funds for flood damage reconstruction.

Menton was instructed by the board to file a suit against Sheriff Logan Jackson and other officials, to test validity of the board's attempt to confiscate statutory fees formerly retained by the officials. Supervisors then appealed to the attorney general's office, and now hope to hire a private attorney to conduct their case.

Marine Loses In Time Honored Feud With the Navy

U. S. Marines hung their heads today.

They lost—all the way around—in a revival of their time-honored feud with the Navy yesterday.

Lowell Moffett, 486 Locust street, Laguna Beach, represented the marines, and he was in the county hospital with a broken jaw today. Arrested in Laguna Beach on a drunk driving charge, Moffett admitted he fought with a sailor, but declined to admit he'd received the worst of it. He mentioned no names.

Attachment Denied Detective Betten

D. H. Betten, Santa Ana detective employed by the K. B. drugstore two years ago to investigate suspected thefts inside the store, cannot attach property now owned by the McCoy drug company of Santa Ana, Justice of the Peace Kenneth Morrison has ruled.

Betten's services of $383.11 cannot be filed against the McCoy company which bought K. B. drugstore goods assigned Forrest MacFarland, but must be filed against the K. B. company itself, Judge Morrison ruled.

Clergymen Plan Rogers-Post Shaft

SAN PEDRO, (AP)—Arctic waters beckoned today to two southwestern clergymen, who plan to erect a stone monument on the Alaskan lagoon where Will Rogers and Wiley Post died in a plane crash in 1935.

Dr. Homer F. Kellems, evangelist of Delaware, Okla., and Dr. Roy E. Curtis, pastor of the First Christian church at Hillsboro, Tex., are outfitting the 38-foot motorboat Pandora for departure May 30.

SANTIAGO, Chile, (AP)—Five Polish aviators on a flight from Los Angeles to Warsaw hopped down here at 9:43 a. m. today (5:43 a. m. P.S.T.) for Buenos Aires.

U. S. WINS 2 POINTS IN TAX TESTS

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The supreme court gave the government two victories today that may have a far-reaching effect on the field of federal taxation.

In one case, the tribunal approved a federal income tax on salaries received by employees of the New York port authority.

In the other, it sustained a federal admission tax on tickets to athletic contests at state universities.

Justices McReynolds and Butler dissented to each.

In other actions during the next to the last opinion-session of this term, the court:

1. Upheld the federal power commission in its effort to proceed with an investigation of the Metropolitan Edison company and other utilities operating in Pennsylvania.

2. Refused to review—thereby leaving in effect—orders of the national labor relations board directing Remington Rand, Inc., the Black Diamond Steamship company of New York and the Carlisle Lumber company of Alaska, Wash., to reinstate striking employees.

3. Ruled constitutional a 1935 Minnesota law prohibiting the importation of certain intoxicating liquor unless registered in the United States patent office.

The court deferred action until Tuesday, May 31, on a petition by the government for reconsideration of the tribunal's recent decision condemning procedure followed by the secretary of agriculture in ordering a reduction in charges at the Kansas City stockyards.

Action also was postponed on a petition by Thomas J. Mooney, seeking release from San Quentin penitentiary.

Hohenzollern Kin Weds Australian

LONDON, (AP)—Prince Michael Radziwill, 68-year-old Polish descendant of the Hohenzollerns, was married today at the Carlton hotel to a Polish Jewish beauty.

Stewart Damsen, 57-year-old widow of a wealthy Australian business man.

The bald, snow-bearded prince recently had been engaged to marry 31-year-old Jeanette Suchestow, a Polish Jewish beauty. He is reported to have an annual income of $250,000.

10,000 Chinese Captured, Claim

WITH THE JAPANESE ARMY IN CENTRAL CHINA (AP)—The Japanese field command said today that 10,000 demoralized Chinese soldiers have surrendered since the fall of Suichow.

The number of prisoners mounted rapidly as Japanese forces relentlessly pursued fragments of the routed Chinese army fleeing from the conquered central China railroad zone.

Severe Quake Felt In Japan, Luzon

TOKYO, (AP)—A severe 10 minute earthquake shook Northeastern Honshu, main island of Japan, today, with considerable property damage. No casualties were reported.

MANILA, (AP)—A sharp earthquake shook a major portion of Luzon island at 4:30 p. m. today.

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP)—David Rubinoff, violinist, was reported slightly injured today at the Battle Creek sanitarium where he has undergone two emergency operations.

TWO DOGS KILLED

Two dogs—a Scotty and a Fox Terrier—were struck and killed by an automobile in the 600 block on East Third street yesterday.

Missing Girl

New York officers are today searching for Betty James Hobbs, 4, (above) missing from her North Tonawanda home. Her tiny shoes and jacket were found near an unused boat dock. Police Chief Hoefert said he was convinced that she was kidnapped or murdered.

POLICE BOMB PICKET LINE

DULUTH, Minn. (AP)—Police exploded tear gas bombs today to disperse a crowd estimated at 500 and open a way through newspaper picket lines for workers to enter the Duluth News-Herald plant, closed by an American Newspaper Guild strike starting April 13 in demands for a "guild" shop.

The papers resumed publication today.

Lieut. Jack Engert, head of police traffic bureau, read the rioting law to the crowd which had been milling about nearly an hour while the non-striking workers sought to enter, the pickets refused to move, and police fired tear gas.

Assets Missing, Receiver Reports

NEW YORK, (AP)—Edward E. Ryan, appointed as receiver for the New York state properties of Basil A. ("Pat") Ryan, 29-year-old heir to a reputed $1,200,000 trust fund left by his grandfather, the late Thomas Fortune Ryan, said today he was unable to find a single asset "owned by Ryan."

He said Ryan, target of a separation suit by his 21-year-old bride, Mrs. Martha Barkley Ryan of Hickory, N. C., from whom he is estranged, was "unavailable" and that he had heard he was somewhere in Connecticut.

Carrier of Bomb Killed By Blast

ROTTERDAM, The Netherlands. (AP)—A bomb a man was carrying in a bag on a main street exploded today, killing the carrier and wounding two passers-by.

Police believed the bomb was intended for Heinz Tiben, a German who recently was imprisoned in Germany for espionage but later was released and came here. He was near the scene.

Powder May Cost Boy's Sight

LOS ANGELES, (AP)—Gunpowder found in a garage in a garage by two boys cost the eyesight of one and seriously burned the other last night.

Carroll Muns, 11, was blinded when a match tossed experimentally into the jar exploded the powder. Junior Barger, 14, was burned.

CZECHS' ANTI-GERMAN VOTE BACKED BY GUNS

Leader of Nazi Minority Meets With Czech Premier

PRAHA, (AP)—Konrad Henlein, leader of Czechoslovakia's autonomous-seeking Germanic minority, and Premier Milan Hodza met tonight in a preliminary effort to settle their dispute, which had brought Europe dangerously near the brink of war.

Henlein returned to the capital by airplane late today and it was understood he had come from Vienna, where presumably he had seen German Nazi leaders.

He arrived soon after reports were received that German troops were withdrawing from the Czechoslovak border. Hopes for averting a serious central European conflict were considered appreciably brighter.

His talk with the Czechoslovak premier was considered a preliminary to real peace negotiations between the Praha government and the 3,500,000 Sudeten Germans, for whom Henlein considers himself spokesman.

Official circles shared a wide relief over relaxation of international tension but also pride that Czechoslovakia's determined stand had helped thwart Hitler.

WAR FEAR EASES

The peaceful passing of yesterday's municipal election day momentarily eased Czechoslovakia's fear of war with Germany, but the question of how her 3,500,000 Germanic minority shall be governed remained unsolved and full of trouble.

Czechoslovak leaders gave Britain and France full credit for their intervention in the interests of peace, but there was widespread satisfaction over the Praha government's unhesitating employment of troops to maintain internal discipline and guard the republic's borders.

500,000 SOLDIERS

Some 500,000 soldiers remained along the 1300-mile frontier, most of them facing German territory, and Praha authorities believed that force would be sufficient to deter any incursion by Hitler, self-proclaimed protector of Germans everywhere, in any attempt to make Czechoslovakia another Austria.

Many Czechs are convinced—and the belief is shared to a wide extent by foreign diplomats—that Hitler's army would have swept into the border districts inhabited by Czechoslovakia's nazified Sudeten German minority had not the Prague government acted with energy and determination.

GOVERNMENT HAPPY

Government quarters expressed deep satisfaction over the result of yesterday's balloting. The strong support received by pro-government parties in Czech communities was interpreted as a vote of confidence for the government's partial mobilization and for its firm refusal to throw its French and Soviet Russian alliances overboard for the sake of peace with Germany.

TWO MORE ELECTIONS

The continued presence of troops at border points, with always the chance of an incident that could set off trouble, and two more municipal election days to come—one next Sunday and one June 12 to complete voting in all regions—were factors of danger. Among the 1500 communities which voted yesterday, 43 were predominantly German and four of these in western Czechoslovakia were classed as cities.

Baby's Clothes Held for Payment

Removing the baby was easier than trying to remove the baby's clothes, Frank Vargas, Upland, found out last week when Mrs. Consuela Rodriguez, 909 Brown street, refused to allow Vargas, who had left the baby in her care for the past six months, to remove the baby's belongings until he pays a nursing salary at $5 per week. Vargas took his 3-year-old baby away when Mrs. Rodriguez was out of the house, she told police.

500,000 ON BORDER TO BLOCK NAZIS

PRAHA, (AP)—A feeling that a victory had been won prevailed in Praha today, augmented by the conviction that but for the obvious determination of the Czechs to defend their territory at all costs and against all odds Germany's Adolf Hitler would have made another lightning move.

Official circles shared a wide relief over relaxation of international tension but also pride that Czechoslovakia's determined stand had helped thwart Hitler.

Administration Strives to Restore Harmony in Democratic Ranks

OREGON ADDED TO LIST OF HEADACHES

WASHINGTON, (AP)—If officials at Democratic headquarters keep a little list of places where they may have to help restore post-primary harmony, the chances are that the word Oregon has been written just beneath Pennsylvania.

The narrow victory of Henry Hess over Gov. Charles Martin of Oregon, who sought Democratic renomination, has interested party workers here because of Republican assertions that their candidate would gain some support from the Martin faction.

National Chairman James A. Farley has given no public indication so far that he might take a hand in trying to reunite the Oregon Democrats before the fall campaign begins.

It would not surprise many political students in the capital, however, if prominent members of the Hess and Martin groups should confer soon—separately, of course—with administration officials.

Only three days after the Pennsylvania primary, it was noted, John L. Lewis, the CIO leader, was a White House luncheon guest, and Walter A. Jones, a prominent Pittsburgh Democrat, was visited in a Washington hotel by a presidential secretary.

Jones, who had supported the defeated CIO slate, thereafter announced he would support the party nominee.

Farley had joined Jones and Lewis in backing Thomas Kennedy, who lost the gubernatorial nomination in Pennsylvania. On the other hand, he had supported Gov. George H. Earle for the senate against the CIO candidate.

In the Oregon contest, however, Farley made it plain before the balloting that he was not taking sides. Friends said afterward he had been surprised by the defeat of Governor Martin, whom Secretary Ickes had described as being "at heart a New Dealer."

The Democratic split in Oregon was not accompanied by a division between the CIO and the American Federation of Labor, such as occurred in Pennsylvania. Both labor organizations supported Hess against Martin, who had criticized labor policies of the Roosevelt administration.

Handling of labor problem, officials of both major parties concede, will be a prominent issue in the Pennsylvania and Oregon elections.

It seems like the relief demand is heavier election years. It is also heavier on the fellow who carries the tax load, but he only has one vote. And it won't be long at the rate we are going before he won't have any property. Then he can quit paying taxes and go on relief.

Few things are said which have not been said. But to trace them back to the fellow who said them first. There's the rub, and offers no end of research.

And the fellow friend called and wanted me to go to a county picnic. The spirit was willing but my legs were weak, and I lacked the approval of the M. D. There were some other complications such as transportation, monetary support, domestic consent, personal safety, and other involvements which do not occur to me just now but sure to appear when a man's judgment is no better than his information. What I'm trying to tell you is that I didn't go to the picnic.

But when he talks about getting his teeth fixed, I think he's got something there.

RUNAWAY SHIP HITS WOMAN; FLIER HELD

BAByLON, N. Y. (AP)—Capt. Ugo V. D'Annunzio, 49, whose runaway airplane struck and seriously injured a woman, was held on a charge of third degree assault.

The aviator, son of Italy's late poet-warrior, was cranking his plane yesterday at Seftersky airport at Farmingdale when the pilotless machine got out of control. It gyrated about the field in widening circles, with Captain D'Annunzio clinging to its tail in an attempt to reach the cockpit. Field attaches warned away several hundred spectators.

The plane crashed through a fence and crushed Mrs. Susie Jones, 44, of Huntington, against her husband's parked car. Hospital physicians said she suffered numerous rib fractures and probably a broken back.

O. V. Harwood, department of commerce inspector, said Captain D'Annunzio had failed to block the plane properly before cranking it.

Reservation Looks Like Swell Place To This Husband

UNION CITY, N. J. (AP)—There's a sad-faced husband in this city who wishes he lived on an Indian reservation. He walked into police headquarters and asked whether there was a law prohibiting sale of whiskey to Indians.

Captain Herman Bolte asked why. "You see, captain," said the subdued spouse pointing to a puffed pair of lips, "my wife's a full blooded Indian and she's drinking. When she does she's difficult to reason with."

Captain Bolte told him the restrictions applied only to reservations. "That's what I was afraid of," remarked the departing man.

L. A. DETECTIVE HELD AFTER OFFICER SLAIN

LOS ANGELES, (AP)—Fletcher E. Felts, 66, private investigator and former police officer, faced a suspicion of murder charge today in the slaying early yesterday of Detective Lieut. George C. Howard, 45.

"I thought he was shooting at me," Felts declared.

The prisoner, a Spanish-American war veteran, told officers he had undergone a delicate brain operation several years ago, and but recently had been released from the national military home, where he had been treated for a heart ailment.

Detective Lieut. James Kleinfeld, Patrolman Lawrence Soderstrom and Deputy Sheriff William Fitzgerald, who were with Howard on a street car, said Felts had been speaking abusively to the motorman, and Howard told him to sit down and keep quiet.

They said when Howard left the car Felts followed and fired three times at his back. Howard died 15 hours later in a hospital.

"There was a bright flash and a loud report, like a pistol shot," Felts told Detective Lloyd Hurst. "I thought he was shooting at me, and I shot back."

Engagement Auto Heir and Phone Operator Revealed

DETROIT, (AP)—A rumored story-book romance between Daniel George Dodge, 20-year-old son of the late John F. Dodge, automobile manufacturer, and Loretta MacDonald, 18-year-old telephone operator at Gore Bay, Ont., was confirmed today.

Mrs. Alfred G. Wilson, Dodge's mother, announced the impending marriage. Dodge is the beneficiary of a trust fund which, by a recent accounting, amounted to $9,331,606.

'Flight Around World' Made By Plane in Douglas Plant

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Within the metal cavern of a Douglas factory shop, the four-motored super-airliner DC-4 has completed its theoretical flight around the world even before it rolls out for its first actual takeoff this week.

Hydraulic jacks, steel towers and a million pounds of lead bars applied with mathematical precision have reproduced inside the plant the tremendous stresses and strains DC-4 will later meet above the clouds.

Today mechanics were putting the finishing touches on the 32-ton sky giant for which five major airlines pooled their resources of technical knowledge and experience.

Special tests were designed for the transport because its 139-foot wingspread and great bulk made ordinary methods impossible.

For 100,000 engineering hours, DC-4 was thumped, twisted, pushed and overloaded, while experts watched for the smallest defect.

More than 50 "landings" were made by dropping the main wheels and the nose wheel of the "tricycle" landing gear with terrific speed and force.

No defects could be found.

Youth Saves Maharajah as Panther Jumps Into Auto

BOMBAY, (AP)—A young hunter today saved the lives of the Maharajah of Dewas and two aides de camp when a wound crazed panther leaped into the tonneau of the prince's automobile.

The Maharajah had been hunting panthers in the Khandwa jungle and was on his way back to Bombay with his trophies when the beast attacked.

The prince had bagged three panthers and had wounded a fourth. The wounded animal apparently trailed the hunters and leaped on them from a tree as they were leaving the forest.

There was a mad struggle in the back of the car with the Maharajah's two aides battering the snarling animal with the butts of their rifles.

The panther had clawed all three men severely when the young hunter in the front seat turned his own gun on the beast.

The panther fell dead at the feet of his bleeding victims and the Maharajah and his aides were taken to a hospital.

Restaurant Chain Founder Summoned

BERNARDSVILLE, N. J. (AP)—William Childs, whose adventure in vegetarianism cost him control of the national chain of restaurants bearing his name, is dead at 72.

Childs and his brother, the late Samuel S. Childs, started the restaurant chain in 1888 and built it into a $37,000,000 system serving 50,000,000 meals a year.

A vegetarian himself, Childs thought he foresaw a trend toward lighter meals and tried to anticipate it with meatless menus. The public was apathetic, and declining profits led stockholders to oust Childs as chairman in March, 1929, after a long battle over proxies.

Thousands Attend Second Orange County Horse Show

WINNERS' LIST ANNOUNCED BY ASSISTANCE LEAGUE; MANY SUPPORT ANNUAL EVENT

The thousands of persons who attended the Second Annual Orange county Horse Show will remember the series of three entertainments last night and Sunday as one of the finest groups of exhibitions of horsemanship ever presented in the county.

Several hundred of Southern California's finest show horses, together with skilled riders, went to make up the successful event. The twenty-five thousand dollars worth of silver-mounted tackle displayed at the opening event of each of the three entertainments served as an appropriate prelude to the sparkling show to follow.

But it wasn't only the regular scheduled event that made the show a bright success; the addition of numerous specialty attractions added further glamour to the occasion. To the members of the Assistance League who earnestly worked on planning the event credit is given, together with those not connected with the organization, but who donated their services and awards.

The winners of the events, as announced by Assistance League officials, were as follows:

Saints Finish Third In Track; Zamperini Seeks Reinstatement

SAN DIEGO'S PREPS FIRST AND SECOND

Barron, Elliott and Relay Team Third; Tedrow Ties for 2nd

Third in a field of 31 scoring schools, Santa Ana's Saints were elated over Saturday's showing in the Southern California prep track and field finals in the Los Angeles Coliseum today, as they prepared for an invasion of Hollister (near San Jose) Saturday for the state finals.

All except Bob Maddock, shot putter, of the Santa Ana varsity qualified for the northern classic. Maddock had tough luck in the Coliseum, stepping out of the ring three times—once when he had a second-place heave of better than 52 feet.

Melvin Barron captured third in a 15.4 sec. flight of 120-yard high hurdles; Howard Elliott was third in a 50.3 sec. quarter-mile; Wendell Tedrow tied for second in the high jump with a leap of 6 ft. 1 in., and the Saint relay team of Jerome Duffy, Don Warhurst, Elliott and Wayne Piper finished second to Compton in a 1 min. 29.3 half-mile.

San Diego's two high schools—Hilliers and Hoover—finished 1-2 with 24 and 20 1/2 points, respectively. Huntington Beach was seventh with nine points.

Complete summary, with points, follows:

FISHING

OCEAN FISHING—The "Sea Hawk" making the Catalina island trip, took some barracuda and a few yellowtail recently. From the Sportfish headquarters here, local coast, the "Delta," also leaves at 8 a. m. Bob Graff reports local waters are clearing now.

HUNTINGTON BEACH.—The "Falcon," leaving here at 7:30 daily, is bringing in good catches now that the storm is over.

FRESH WATER FISHING—Lake Hemlock fishing is steadily improving as the water clears. Some good catches have been made recently on worms, small spinners and plugs.

So far all the San Diego lakes that we have heard from opened on April 29 this season. These include Hodges, Lower Otay, Wohlford, Sweetwater, Moreno and Barrett. This will give anglers two extra days and should help to cut down Sunday crowds. Reservations are absolutely necessary if one plans on any of these lakes for these days—if a boat is desired.

Barney Ross Speaking:

'Henry's A Hooker—I'll Slug With Him'

BARNEY ROSS: Has A Date With Henry Armstrong Thursday.

GROSSINGER LAKE, N. Y. (AP)—The welterweight champion had just finished the day's drill. Barney Ross looked cool and comfortable in gray pin-stripe slacks and a white open-collar sport shirt. He loomed back on a soft lounge in the cottage at his training camp here and gossiped like Henry, always boring in, throwing punches, never giving you time to rest. But I guess Armstrong sets a faster pace.

Ross risks his crown against Featherweight Champion Henry Armstrong, that furious little ebony dynamo, Thursday night, in the Long Island bowl at New York City.

Barney knit his thick, dark-black eyebrows in reflection. "I've been trying to think of someone like him, but for the life of me I can't," he said.

"Tony Canzone sometimes fought like Henry, always boring in, throwing punches, never giving you time to rest. But I guess Armstrong sets a faster pace.

"Henry's a hooker. I've seen him fight twice, against Pete Sarson and Enrico Venturi, and it seemed he almost never jabbed. I'd say he tossed a dozen hooks for every jab."

Ross is a straight puncher and a straight shot will beat a hook. "Yes, that's right. A straight shooter generally will whip a hooker. That's why I think I'll win over Armstrong. I'll be driving in punches that will land before Henry's hooks get me."

Henry is a furious puncher, though. Always moving into his man. "But he's never met anyone who forced him to stop walking forward. That's the trouble with those fellows he's beaten. They've all been scared of him and have given ground. You don't get tired if you can just keep moving ahead and tossing punches."

"And another thing, you can't hurt anyone if you're hitting while moving away. Those fellows couldn't hurt Armstrong because they wouldn't stand up and give him a solid punch. Armstrong doesn't back up, and you know he doesn't so something is going to have to give way when we meet."

BEAULHOLD TRIED IT Billy Beaulhold didn't run from

"The chief called from the door and said dinner was ready. "Boy, am I hungry," Barney said. "I'm sure glad I don't have to worry about my diet. I can eat anything I want to and as much of it and it never affects my weight. Come on, fellows, let's go get some grub."

"I'm ready to fight him today. I'm in shape now. I never have to worry much about weight. I laid off five months after fighting Garcia and I was just six pounds overweight when I began training two months ago. I took that off in a couple of days."

"I've got a couple of sparring partners up here who are fast, hookers and always punching. I don't want anyone in camp who is slow enough to let me get set to nail him."

'I MADE A MISTAKE,' SAYS LOUIE

'It's Contemptible Lie,' Runner Says Of Expense Demands

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Louis Zamperini, distance star, talked earnestly today about earning his way back on the great University of Southern California track team from which he was fired for "failure to cooperate."

"That," he said, "is my determination to do, even though I can't run any more this year."

"I made a mistake, but I don't believe it was the kind that will prevent me from earning my way back on the Trojan track team."

The mistake Zamperini made was not running a widely publicized 1500 meter race against Don Lash in the Compton invitational meet last Friday night, disappointing 6000 fans.

Herschel Smith, meet manager, charged Zamperini had demanded "exorbitant expense money" to race in suburban Compton. This Zamperini said, in a long statement issued yesterday, was a "contemptible lie."

But from Friday night until Sunday he had said nothing and no sports writer could find him to question him. Meanwhile Coach Dean Cromwell of Southern California announced Zamperini had promised to run in the meet and that he was being dropped from the team.

"A week before the meet," said Zamperini, "I told our team manager, Frank Hamilton, not to send my entry in, that I wasn't going to run, that my weight was down and with three races coming up in two days of the approaching Pacific Coast conference meet, I intended to protect the school by saving myself for that meet."

Zamperini said he talked with Smith privately a few hours before the meet, but "I swear that money was not mentioned or anything else except to demand why he continued to advertise me" as running against Lash.

Smith held to his original charge, declaring "it would have been much more simple to have given Louis the money he deserved to have brought all this upheaval."

Avalon Man's Kite String Is Fish Line

AVALON. (AP)—Fishing with a kite helps "Tuna George" Farnsworth maintain his reputation as one of the smartest game fish guides in the business.

Anglers recall a season the tuna stopped biting. Captain Farnsworth alone came in every day with one or more 100-pounders.

The kite was the answer. He reasoned the tuna somehow realized that those striking at bait in the wake of a boat were coming to grief, so he attached his line to the kite and flew it far away from the chum of a propeller.

"Tuna George" still uses his kite when occasion calls for it. Mainly, however, he relies on a knowledge of Pacific game fish gained in a long career as boatman for wealthy sportsmen.

DUGAN, BACA BATTLE IN SECONDARY

'Cotton' Warburton May Be Guest Of Highway 101 Arena

Featuring a match that has been hailed as a "natural" by matchmakers of virtually every boxing arena in Southern California, the Orange County Athletic club is ready to present its second boxing show at 8:30 tonight. Advance reservations indicate an even larger house than witnessed the first show.

In the double main event Charlie Stone, sensational Fullerton Junior college fighter, meets Tommy O'Connell, who has fought main events in the leading clubs of the Southland. Both boys have been undergoing intensive training for the match, and both declare that they are in the "pink" of condition.

The second half of the double main event brings together Jimmie Dugan, Santa Ana, one-time heavy fighter, and Fernie Baca of Ontario. Baca, who went in as a last-minute substitute in the main event last week against Johnny Prietas, stole the show with his clever boxing and hard hitting.

TOMMY O'CONNELL FACES ACID TEST TONIGHT In the semi-windup Dick Munoz, tough Santa Ana fighter, battles Marty Gomez, Los Angeles, at 140 pounds. Other matches on the cards:

Jack Malone, Santa Ana, vs. "Red" O'Shannon, Los Angeles, 155 pounds; Charlie O'Connell, Los Angeles, vs. "Bud" Sady, Los Angeles, 145 pounds; Freddie Cerda, Anaheim, vs. Jackie Leonard, Los Angeles, 145 pounds; Frankie Cardia, Los Angeles, vs. Sal Baca, Ontario, 122 pounds; and Badger Diaz, Pomona, vs. B. Jimenez, Ontario, 120 pounds.

Matchmaker Frankie Lockhart expects to have at the ringside as his guest "Cotton" Warburton, former U. S. C. football all-American.

Two Debs Are Hostesses At Shower

An array of gay red, white and blue accessories for the bathroom of her new home was showered on Miss Betty West Saturday afternoon when two close friends, Miss Harriet Fowler and Miss Evelyn Witt, entertained at a party in her honor. Miss West is to be the June bride of Frew Pinkston.

The affair was a surprise to the honoree, who received her gifts at the time a dainty refreshment course was served. The hostesses were assisted in serving by their mothers, Mrs. J. A. Fowler and Mrs. H. F. Witt.

At bridge and hearts, Miss Betty Bradley and Miss Evelyn Kogler were high scorers, receiving dainty gifts at the close of the afternoon. Guests attending were Mrs. Jerry Gaston, Mrs. Lawrence Trickey, and the Misses Betty Bradley, Evelyn Kogler, Barbara Warne, Mildred McCalla, Virginia Curry, Jo Flaherty, Wanda Todd, Catherine Eklund, Virginia Wilson, Janet Hollingsworth, Josephine Butler, Helen Andrews, Winifred Pettit, Dee Pettitt, Justin Krock, Eleanor Brady, Audrey Sattler, Marjorie Hayden, Cleo Pike and Marjorie Madden. Invited but unable to attend were Miss Betty Timmons, Miss Eleanor Cogan, Mrs. John Barlow, Jr., Miss Kate Lillard, Miss LaVonne Frandson and Miss Mercedes Kellogg.

IN THE PINK OF FASHION

In Pink—one of fashion's favorite spring hues—is the color of this flower-patterned lace dance frock. A cluster of pink roses and forget-me-nots is caught at the base of its vee décolletage. The same flowers are repeated in the bracelet.

WEEKLY BOOK REVIEW

By MOLLY HARVEY
Editor's Note: This is one of a series of weekly book reviews of current publications which will appear each Monday in The Journal.

"Dry Guillotine" by Rene Belbenoit
If you must pursue a life of crime do not choose France for the scene of your activities. If caught, the chances are you will be sent to the penal colony of French Guiana, descriptions of which make a Georgia chain-gang seem like paradise in comparison. So brutal, so inhuman, so degrading is the treatment of prisoners there, that though escape through the jungle or by sea is literally one chance in a hundred, and recapture means years of solitary confinement in a dark cell, every week desperate men are willing to take that one chance.

Such a man was Rene Belbenoit, who after 22 months of superhuman effort and amazing adventures finally reached the United States, lugging with him 30 pounds of manuscript safely wrapped in oiled paper. Thirty-eight, terribly emaciated, almost blind, toothless, scurvy eaten and fever wracked, he hoped that his sufferings had not been in vain, and that the publication of his book would arouse public opinion that France would finally do away with her present prison system.

During his 15 years of exile from civilization, Belbenoit, at one time or another, was placed in most of the encampments which compose the colony, was afflicted by every form of punishment except death, which at times would have seemed like a merciful release. Even after he had fulfilled his sentence he was not allowed to leave, but was sentenced to spend the rest of his days scavenging like a jackal in Cayenne, the city of the "liberes."

His story is gruesome, horrible, macabre. That such conditions exist of the Middle Ages is incredible. The whole policy of the prison administration seemed to be, "we are saddled with you criminals for the rest of your lives, and the sooner you die, the better."

The fact that "Dry Guillotine" is being so widely read in the United States should prove of great embarrassment to the French government, and I for one, believe that Belbenoit's dream of the penal colony's abolition will come true.

VISITORS ENJOY HORSE SHOW AND SUPPER
Mrs. Babcock Burns of Los Angeles, a resident of Santa Ana for the month, entertained a group of Hollywood friends at a box party at the horse show yesterday afternoon, and later took them to the Santa Ana Country club for a buffet supper.

Toni Barrios Is Wed To Yorba Scion

At a lovely ceremony yesterday afternoon at three o'clock at St. Joseph's church, Miss Toni Barrios, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Toni Barrios of 910 South Main street, became the bride of Gilbert Yorba, son of Mrs. A. Valencia of this city.

The bride wore a suit of warm brown with a luggage tan pin stripe, copper accessories, and a corsage of gardenias and lilies on her shoulder. The church was decorated with baskets of primroses in varying pastel shades. Maid of honor was Miss Marianna Peters who wore a blue dress under a light coat of darker blue, with dark blue accessories and a corsage.

Miss Rose Utick had the guests sign in the bride's book at the door of the church preceding the ceremony. Andrew and Frank Utick and Alphonso Yorba were ushers while Wayne Garlock of Hollywood was best man for the occasion and the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father O'Brien. Miss Constance Brown was at the organ to play a wedding march and several other selections.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Toni Barrios. Her mother, Mrs. Barrios, wore a black suit with white accessories and a white rosebud corsage. A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents which was beautifully decorated with baskets of spring flowers. A lovely white wedding cake was served from a small table which was surrounded by wedding presents.

The bride attended Santa Ana High school and junior college, as did the groom who later received his degree from the University of California. The young couple will make their home on East Myrtle street. Mr. Yorba is employed at a local service station. Next week-end they will leave on a short honeymoon trip.

In the shadow of the old San Juan Capistrano mission, members of the Yorba family gathered to celebrate the marriage of the young couple.

In California the history of the Yorba family dates from 1776, when Jose Antonio Yorba assisted Father Junipero Serra in founding the mission. Miss Lillian Yorba of San Juan Capistrano gave the dinner for 14 Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in honor of the bride and groom.

The table was beautifully decorated with a lovely bouquet of talisman roses as a centerpiece. Over the bouquet was a bridal arch with a miniature bride and groom. Yellow streamers ran from the centerpiece to each place. The table was set in many colored pottery dishes, with tall yellow tapers at each end of the festive board. A delicious Spanish dinner was served topped off by a bride cake of which the first piece was cut and served by Miss Barrios.

A group of lovely gifts were received by the guest of honor from the guests present who were the Messrs. and Mesdames Joe Yorba, Rudolph Yorba, Red Hughes, and Ed Dace; Miss Lillian Yorba; Richard Yorba and Gil Yorba; and the Mesdames Laurie Viardes, Pilar Soto and John Landell.

PROGRAM ON ISLANDS IS ENJOYED
A delightful beach party was enjoyed by members of Sixth Household section of Eboli who met at the Newport Beach home of one of the members at 2622 Ocean Front. Hostesses for the afternoon were the Mesdames Helen Heil, O. H. Barr, and Jessie White. The topic for the day was "Hawaii" with twenty members present to enjoy the delicious luncheon served. Each guest upon arriving was presented with a lei to wear by Mrs. W. H. Harrison, chairman of program committee.

Lovely spring flowers decorated the dining room. Mrs. B. H. Sharpless who lived in the Hawaiian Islands for nine years came dressed in native costume of bright print with a train and elbow sleeves, and a lei made of real flowers, and a wreath of flowers in her hair. Mrs. Sharpless told of the early years in the islands and gave a tribute to the first missionaries who went there.

The Mesdames R. E. Coulter, Helen Heil, Jessie White, George Munro, and Miss Lida Crookshank told of their impressions of recent visits to the islands.

TOROSA PAST GRANDS MEET
Torosa Rebekah Past Noble Grands were pleasantly entertained last week when they met at the home of Mrs. Frankie Johnson at Westminster. At a business session conducted by Mr. Ada Spencer, plans were made for a party, to be given June 8.

Present were the Mesdames Jean Tremble, Mary Coover, Martha McKee, Leona Talbot, Laura Keseman, Eleanor Pickle, Laura Trammell, Mary Kuhl, Estelle Grey, Ethel Brown, Gladys McDonald, Bertie Launsbach, Mary Hilyard, Edna Kinsella, Lottie Lyman, Ada Spencer, Mary Ann Knox, Minnie Squire and Maude Lentz, with Mrs. A. Arnett of Westminster a special guest.

TEA TOMORROW
Missionary society of Spurgeon Memorial Methodist church will hold its May tea tomorrow at 2 p. m. at the home of Mrs. John Sebastian, 400 South Bristol street. Miss Edna Loh, dean of a Bible school in China, is to be guest of honor.

CLUB LADIES TO LUNCH
Members of the Martha Washington club will meet for a one o'clock luncheon Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Jennie Prevost, 101 Yorba, Tustin.

RECENT BRIDE FETED BY BRIDE-ELECT

Miss Margaret Perry, popular bride-elect of William Milton Townsend, was hostess Friday evening at a pretty party given to compliment her close friend, Mrs. Clois Purvis (Emma Belle Fowler) whose wedding was an event of May day.

Philip Perry assisted her daughter in hosting the pleasant affair, at which Chinese chess was a novel diversion. Prizes at the conclusion of the evening were presented Mrs. John Stalnaker and Miss Ann Gribble at the same time, numerous lovely gifts of a personal nature were showered on the bride.

Fragrant roses and colorful sweetpeas, the thoughtful gifts of Mrs. Warren Bramley, Mrs. E. E. Perry, and Mrs. Edward Perry. Guests at the affair were the honoree and her mother, Mrs. A. E. Fowler; Mrs. E. L. Purvis, mother of the bridegroom; and Mrs. Gerald Lowell, Mrs. Raymond Born, Mrs. John Stalnaker, Mrs. Warren Bramley, Mrs. George Clark, Miss Evelyn Sheppard, Miss Paula Purvis, Miss Fern Anderson, Mrs. Irma Swartz, Miss Irene Lawrence, Miss Nell Lawrence, Miss Anne Gribble, Miss Mildred Stickle, Miss Dorothy Gable, and Miss Ruth Townsend.

MONTHLY TEA OF DAUGHTERS IS ENJOYABLE

A lovely table adorned with snapdragons and sweetpeas greeted eyes of Daughters of Union Veterans and their guests last week when they met for a monthly tea at the home of Mrs. Maude Hendrie on West Washington street.

Behind the tea urns were Mrs. Elton Smith, president, and Mrs. Fannie Nau, senior vice president. Visitors for the day were Mrs. Mildred Sullivan, Mrs. Marie Boggess, and Mrs. Ella Sexton.

Members attending as guests were the Mesdames Florence Price, Thelma Williams, Addie Gardner, Maude Wallace, Nettie Griswold, Luella Hill, Anne Derr, Grace Benjamin, and Fannie Nau. Members serving as hostesses were the Mesdames Lena Walters, Maybelle Harper, Edith Troxel, Jessie Hagglund, Geraldine Beal, Grace Grigsby, and Emma Mitchell.

EARLY JUNE RITES PLANNED

Of great interest to local people are plans for the wedding of Miss Nora Ardaiz of Anaheim and Paul L. Fallert of Fullerton, which is to occur June 11 in the Santa Ana Wedding chapel.

The groom is particularly well known here, being a descendant of the Coz family, pioneer county residents. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Fallert of Fullerton (Elizabeth Cozad).

The bride-elect is popular in the younger set, and was feted recently by former junior college-mates at a misalliance shower, with Miss Jean Freck, Miss Mary Louise Hughes, Miss Modell Kennedy, and Miss Emma Jane Hunt as co-hostesses.

MARY STODDARD

Nothing Wrong with Children Affirms Mother of Grownups

Lend your children a helping hand from the cradle until they've reached maturity—but let your hand be firm as well as gentle. A playful colt can never be trained if it is permitted to roam the pasture carefree and wild. There is a letter in the morning mail in answer to several recent ones from parents who ask, "What is wrong with our children today?" Dear Miss Stoddard, I've been wishing some capable writer would answer "What's wrong with the children today?" but so far, not a scratch, so thought I'd tell you what I think in my small way.

The trouble with the children today is the parents—nothing else. The kids are fine. Just give them the chance they are entitled to. Mother, when you found there was to be a "blessed event," were you glad? Did you read and plan for him or her, even if things did look a bit discouraging?

Then when baby came, did you give up the dance, parties and the gay life of so many of our young marrieds and be a real mother, constantly on the job, be the one to instruct and guide those little feet and inquisitive hands, answering the thousand and on questions truthfully and always patiently? As brother and sister followed, did you teach each one to be considerate of the other and to deal honestly at all times?

Were the nickels they earned saved for a necessity, or were you so situated, saved for a trip each week-end, perhaps a Sunday picnic, when mother fixes the lunch and the whole family enjoys the outing, allowing each member of the family to choose, in turn, where to go? Have you a state map hanging in your home, so if you are able to go even into adjoining counties, you can look up the location geographically of the next picnic spot? If to the park or the beach, look it up on the local map. You'll be surprised how interesting the whole family will be. The children will soon be saying, "Oh, I'd like to go over to the lake or up to the mountains and so on, and they'll work harder and save more to realize this precious ambition."

Then, above all, don't forget the spiritual training. Take them to Sunday school all winter. Make the children feel they are the family by talking over the important affairs in their presence. Ask their opinion on occasions. They should have been taught not

TRICKEYS GIVEN BRIDAL RECEPTION

Friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Trickey (Ethel Chaffee) who have just returned from a wedding trip in Nevada after their marriage at Las Vegas April 28, were invited to greet them at a reception given by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Chaffee, at their home on Huntington avenue Friday evening. The couple have now established their home at 824 Birch street, Santa Ana, where they were attending junior college prior to their marriage. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Trickey of West Stanford avenue.

During the pleasantly informal evening Mrs. Irvine German sang "At Dawning" and "Oh Promise Me" with her son Irvine German, Jr., at the piano and Mrs. German playing a violin obligato. Many lovely gifts were presented the couple and at a late hour a tiered wedding cake was served with ices and punch. The bride cut the first slice of cake with the remainder being cut by Lillian Crane.

Present to greet the couple were Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Chaffee, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Bower, Santa Ana; Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Hunter, Whittier; Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Boyd, Brea; Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Peterson, Anaheim; Mr. and Mrs. John H. Trickey, Hilton Canyon, Orange; Mrs. Mina Burchfield, Placentia; Dr. and Mrs. Burns Chaffee, Miss Jane Walling, John Chaffee, Long Beach; Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Trickey, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Smiley and daughter Elma May, Dr. and Mrs. Donald Waters, Mr. and Mrs. F. German and son Irvine, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Achey, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Oldfield, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Reeder and son Ralph, Mr. and Mrs. W. V. McClain, Dr. Charles F. Seitter, Mrs. G. R. Reayburn, Mrs. W. B. Merchant, Misses Mettie Chaffee, Lillian Crane and Winifred Chaffee.

BOY CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

Spencer Elliott, Jr., whose twelfth birthday anniversary is today, celebrated the event yesterday at the home of his parents, where a family dinner party was held. His grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. B. Earl Elliott and Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Thompson were present. Also Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Thompson and Mr. and Mrs. John Sciarino and daughter Mary. The dinner was climaxed by the appearance of a pink birthday cake with a dozen pink candles on it. The dinner guests numbered exactly a dozen, also.

I. T. U. LADIES TO MEET

The International Typographical Union auxiliary will meet tomorrow at noon at the home of Mrs. J. W. Jones, 1315 South Parton street, for luncheon to be followed by a meeting.

to repeat things of a personal nature by this time.

Take an interest in their school, ask questions, find out who their playmates are, have them play in your back yard. Have a sand pile for the writing—and let them dig in a certain location, of course. Children love to build things even in dirt. They will have roads, cities, mountains and all. Look it over and say "How did you build it?" or, if you have time, sit down and build with them. Make their life your job. You know you started this, so stick to it and do a good job of it. After all, there isn't anything except the children any how.

If you gain their confidence you need never worry about their doing much wrong. And you'll have their confidence if you listen interestedly, advise peacefully, lovingly, and above all, don't betray the confidence. I've brought up a family and they've never given me cause for sorrow. Sincerely, Not Wondering.

These lines are by Grace S. Dawson of Pasadena. She writes... "I have recently turned my attention to California history settings, and my first book, 'The Nugget of Singing Creek' (Doubleday) is just out.

"This is a juvenile story of California gold rush of '49, and it includes a sprinkle of children's lyrics which belong in the story."

SUNDOWN
Over the wrinkled summits of that far slope
Kindle together
Colors of flowers, verbenas and heliotrope—
Color of heather—
Flushing, flickering, flaming along the ridge,
Delicate fire,
Until the creeping shadow's long blue edge,
Lifting higher,
Quenches the lambent glory, too frail to live,
Too soon to expire.

WINTER ORCHARDS
There is a mystery over winter orchards
One tree alone will never quite disclose
Nets of unnumbered leafless, lifting branches
Catch a mirage of color—violet, rose,
Delicate, trembling green. One might suppose
It was some half-forgotten dream of summer,
For summer does not see it there, nor spring.
It is a fragile, faint elusive thing,
The hovering spirit of a slumbering orchard,
A secret only a tree in winter knows.

THE LENS
Never completely whole.
Oh, never clearly
Do I discern these passing by.
Even the soul
Of him most dearly
Close to me
Remains a stranger. For I cannot see.

The world around me save
Through this intrinsic I.
A strange translucent thing,
Convex, concave,
Fused in my suffering,
Marred by fine flaws
That blur the colors, flex the sight
And let me never quite
See clear, see true,
Perceive the intimate cause.

And there is nothing I can do.
For I must gaze
"Through a glass darkly" all my days.
Never shall I behold the clean
Exquisite outline of the truth until Nothing is left between
And I can look my fill,
When the last word is spoken
And the lens—the lens lies broken.

I Just Found OutVoting
Means
Red Tape—By—
MILLARD
BROWNE

The Democratic system has lots of rabid supporters in Orange county, but there are two people who are affected more directly by it than any others. Because Democracy means elections, and elections mean full-time jobs for Elmer Schaniel and Ruth Gustin, deputies in County Clerk B. J. Smith's office.

The two deputies spend most of their working hours keeping registrations up to date, preparing voting lists for several dozen elections—city, county, school, water district—which come up from time to time each year.

Biggest job these days is taking affidavits of changed party affiliation, most of them changing to the Townsend party, with many slated to switch back in event the Townsends don't get on the ballot for August's primaries.

Greatest nuisance is when an applicant can't remember which party he belonged to last time, and it happens several times a day. One man just joined the Townsend ranks after being a Republican, Democrat, Progressive and Republican again in less than two years.

Anyone who voted in either the primary or general election two years ago still is registered, though many of them come in and want to do it all over again. If you've ever registered, you stay on the books by merely voting in one of the county elections every two years.

Registration books are open to the public, but you can't find out much about your neighbor there, since they only require answers to routine questions. There was a time that the great register gave ages, though, and these records now are a big help to the county welfare department in checking old age pension applicants who may have added a few years to the correct total.

Affidavits of registration are made in duplicate, one copy going into precinct books which are sent to the polls on election day, the other staying in the clerk's great register. Majority of applicants for re-registration can't remember which of the 271 precincts they live in.

Precincts are divided whenever registration gets around the 300 mark (next in line for division in Seal Beach precinct, which currently has biggest number of voters in the county). New indexes to the great register is made up by precincts each two years, and all mid-term changes are recorded on proof sheets at the desk of precinct books, so they'll be available for special elections (three to five precinct books are sent to each polling place).

Deputies occasionally hear complaints that a lot of voters aren't even citizens. Their answer to that: Anyone who registers must swear or affirm the truth of all statements, and clerks consequently accept them as true unless someone challenges them. If someone lies about his nationality or age, it isn't the deputy's fault.

People rarely refuse to give any of the information required, since it's of a very general nature. They occasionally will refuse to "swear" (Continued On Page 9)

FLYING COPS OF L. A. PAY VISIT HERE

The long arm of Orange county's law reached out to shake the hand of Los Angeles county's law yesterday at a mutual admiration meeting which started at Eddie Martin's airport, proceeded to the Green Cat cafe and finished at the horse show.

It was the annual goodwill flight of Los Angeles Sheriff Eugene W. Biscailuz's aero squadron, and a score of Santa Ana officials headed by Sheriff Logan Jackson, host to the 75 local and Los Angeles officials at a luncheon which followed the arrival, was on hand at the airport to meet the 27 volunteer pilots.

Cooperation among the various units of law enforcement—theme stressed in a brief talk by Biscailuz after visiting and local dignitaries had been introduced.

"Regardless of any ambitions and personal jealousies, law enforcement agencies all have to work together for the mutual benefit and for the benefit of the public," Biscailuz declared, assuring the Santa Ana officers of his department's willingness to cooperate in any enforcement problem.

Postmaster Frank Harwood acted as toastmaster and introduced the Santa Ana civic and club representatives attending, including District Attorney W. F. Menton; Mayor Fred Rowland; B. M. A. Secretary Phil Brown; Rod Bacon, emergency disaster committee representative of the Lions club; Dale Deckert, air show committee chairman; Howard Wood, chamber of commerce secretary; W. F. Croddy, chamber vice president; Hunter Leach, representing Santa Ana police officers' association; B. A. Hershey, Santa Ana police representative; and Capt. H. C. Meehan of the California Highway Patrol.

The visiting fliers, many of whom brought their wives and friends, included: Captain C. F. Morgan, commander of the aero detail; Executive Officer W. E. Corey, and H. B. Watson, Bob Muller, A. A. Hopkins, John Myers, John Fulton, R. G. Finney, Dan King, Marion West, Wally Timm, Joseph Plosser, George Armstrong, Henry King, Willard Stapler, Orr, Mohler, Ward Williams, John Todd, A. P. Atherton, H. C. Lippitt, Elston B. Koger, Ben S. McGlashan, Dave Steinmetz, Captain William Fox of the U. S. marine force, Naval Commander V. T. Grant, Major A. A. Peterman of the California National Guard and Lieut. W. Williams of the U. S. navy.

Santa Ana Bankers May Attend Session

Two Santa Ana bankers may attend the California Bankers association convention in Del Monte this week—but they weren't quite sure today.

W. B. Williams, vice president and cashier of the First National bank, and A. C. Hasenjaeger, executive vice president of the Commercial National bank, are considering attending the convention.

Vegetables Fly Through the Air; West and Smith Get Pally Over Ice Cream, and a Good Time Is Had by All at County Picnic

By FRANK ORR
Twilight dripped through branches of the old oak trees... a singer stepped up to a microphone, opened his mouth...

Then Ex-Sheriff Sam Jernigan, Ex-Supervisor W. C. Jerome and Ex-Grand Juror Fred Chapman flung assorted vegetables and buns, splattering the stage and performer...

Supervisors Willard Smith and N. E. West, most extreme political opposites in county history, sat with their heads together over a paper cup of ice cream...

Bigwigs had their egos good-naturedly deflated. It was the time of year when self-styled "looters of the public treasury" let their hair down—the annual county picnic in Irvine park, which Saturday night furnished food, chukles, exercise and possible votes for county officials, employees, their families and office seekers, both in and out of office.

Supervisors Harry Riley, John Mitchell and Steele Finley weren't there. Smith and West came, took it and smiled. Jack Lloyd, moving spirit of the rollicking minstrel show, started to blow his nose, then desisted when he remembered his face was a mass of burnt cork.

Judge Kenneth Morrison, master of ceremonies, gave a Spanish twang to pronouncing "Rigoletto," blushed down to his full-dress collar and corrected it to sound Italian.

The vegetable-pelted singer was Coroner Earl Abbey, in blackface, whose hearty warbling of "Down in Jungle Town"—with gestures—proved highlight of the evening.

Lloyd, Harold Springer and Orlo Householder did the end-man honors, with Judge Morrison as interlocutor. Householder drew applause for his singing of "Wait-in' for the Robert E. Lee"—with gestures.

Lloyd was the loud-mouthed Franklin Rosenfeld Johnson political orator, delivering "fireside chatter on the Mis Deal and other matters."

He advocated a courthouse coffee shop "so John Mitchell can stop worrying" about employees' coffee expeditions in mid-morning. Mitchell, he said, really is "so interested in the welfare of the end tax payers that he's going to refund his salary for while he had the measles."

Supervisor West bellowed the speller binder need a robot chauffeur "so he won't be wrecking any more county cars."

Auditor W. T. Lambert, opined the now-heated speaker, "who knows his typewriters; he gets ten cents if they do cost $1200." (Lambert got a $100 L. C. Smith typewriter last month, after a year of costly litigation over county purchasing policy.)

Sea Lion Diet For State's Dogs Brought to End
LONG BEACH, (AP)—California dogs no longer will be able to eat Mexican sea lions for supper.

Return of the Romancia, one time yacht of the king of Spain, marked last week-end the end of a sea lion consumption obtained by a local manufacturer of dog food from the Mexican government.

The Romancia, now converted into a freighter, arrived at Long Beach from the lower California coast.

More than 20,000 sea lions, it is estimated, were captured and canned for canine consumption by the manufacturer's fleet in the past 18 months.

The fleet included the schooner Lottie Bennett, the contract boat Skippy, and the floating cannery, F. S. Loop.

Representative members from each of the five Southern California Junior college chapters are expected to be present this evening as guests of the local junior college.

It was learned that two newspaper men, one from the Santa Ana Journal and one from the Register, would be asked to join the fraternity as special members. Their names will not be disclosed until tonight.

Jaycee Beta Phi Gamma officers include Vic Rowland, president, and Delph Wollers, secretary-treasurer. Other members who will be installed are Jack Gardner, Bob Prescott, Gloria Krichner, Ed Velarde, Oscar Lieffers and Bob Swanson.

MAYOR BACKS POPPY DAY
Mayor Fred C. Rowland gave official recognition to the annual Poppy Days of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legion auxiliary, scheduled for this Friday and Saturday, in a proclamation released today. It follows: "Whereas, in the World War of 1917-1918 the young men of Santa Ana gave their service to the defense of the United States in an exalted spirit of patriotism and some were called upon to sacrifice their lives in that service; "Whereas, many of others were called upon to sacrifice health and strength, with resulting suffering and hardships to themselves and families which continue to this day; "Whereas, the memory of these patriotic sacrifices should ever be kept fresh in the minds of patriotic citizens, while fullest aid should be extended to those still within the reach of human aid; "And, Whereas, the wearing of the Memorial day poppy both honors the dead and aids the disabled and dependents; "Therefore, I, Fred C. Rowland, Mayor of the City of Santa Ana, do hereby proclaim Friday, May 27, and Saturday, May 28, Poppy Days in the City of Santa Ana, and urge all citizens to observe the day by wearing The American Legion and American Legion auxiliary Memorial poppy."

Lloyd was the loud-mouthed Franklin Rosenfeld Johnson political orator, delivering "fireside chatter on the Mis Deal and other matters."

"The lion and the lamb," he shouted over the shrieks of a siren concealed in the rostrum, "should lie down together. Why don't they? Let N. E. West and Jim Sleeper tell us why!" (West and Assessor Sleeper have probably the courthouse's most sincere feud, rivaled only by West's tiff with Lambert.)

"We need men who are in time with themselves," harangued the blackface Huey Long. "We want 'em in tune, even if they have to huddle in a back room to do it." (Supervisor-Chairman Smith blushed, chuckled.)

Six hundred persons attended the program, which followed a barbecue prepared by Willis Duffy and Tony Barrios and preceded a dance in the park pavilion.

Brief welcoming remarks were given by Fred Siebott, county recorder and president of the officers' association; J. Arthur Anderson, president of the employees' organization, and Chairman Smith. Judge Morrison called to the stage and introduced other county department heads.

Musical entertainment was highlighted by singing of the Elks double quartet and xylophone-piano numbers by Stanley and Lela Slaback.

Dancing later was attended by a large number of the picnicers and a large number of Orange and Santa Ana high school students.

Fifty thousand tons of sugar beets from Imperial valley—first large-scale production from that area—were being turned into sugar today at the million-dollar Holly Sugar company plant south of Santa Ana.

The Imperial valley harvest, first in history to be processed here, will practically double output of the Holly plant for the year. The company's second campaign, beginning in August, will handle a slightly larger amount of local beets.

Machinery at the plant was started Saturday, and will run day and night for approximately 50 days until the valley crop is processed. More than 300 men will be employed, most of them from the Delhi district.

LOCAL GIRL WINS HONOR
Mary Ellen Dudley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt Dudley, 1228 North Broadway, sophomore student at the University of Southern California, was elected to membership in Spooks and Spokes, junior women's honorary organization, her parents learned today.

Miss Dudley was one of 12 sophomores to be elected. The award was made at an annual recognition banquet of the Women's Self Government association, attended by 650 Trojan women.

Miss Ione Hooven, also of Santa Ana, newly elected president of the self-government association, introduced her new cabinet at the banquet.

Librarians Hear Dr. John B. Mason
Librarians who attended the recent convention at the Ambassador hotel in Los Angeles were privileged to hear a talk by Dr. John Brown Mason, of Santa Ana Junior college on the topic of junior libraries. Miss Ethel Walker of this city was named on the nominations and resolutions committee at the convention.

Attending from the county library were the Misses Louise Foreman, Virginia Fox, Anna Mary Beck, Lillian Gouldin, Lois Murray, Gwen Griffin, Margaret Morrison, and the Mrs. A. A. Alexander, and the Misses Clarence Suffer, Ruth Bishop, Verna Ramsey, Leona Calkins, Mary Bowyer, Eleanor Metzgar, Juanita Lake, Ruth Hilyard, Alberta Carter, Leone Baxter and Mona Summers Smith.

DR. HANSEN HERE
Dr. F. S. Hansen, who is completing his training in public health work at the University of California at Berkeley, will be in the Orange county health office for the next few weeks as part of his field training observation work in connection with the university.

100 Courses to Be Offered at L. B.
Nearly 100 courses are included in the curriculum of the Long Beach summer high school, enrollment for which will be held June 18. It was announced today.

Novelty courses scheduled for this year include photography, auto mechanics, radio, psychology, current sociology, costume design and art appreciation. A full curriculum of business and academic courses also has been lined up.

Hears Testimony

Mrs. Rubye Nix Zioncheck, widow of the late Rep. Marian A. Zioncheck of Washington state, after she left a Washington, D. C., court after hearing testimony in a $2700 damage suit against her, filed by Mrs. Pamela S. Young, writer. The damage suit was brought for damages allegedly done by the late congressman to furnishings of an apartment.

Peterson emphatically denied there has been any talk among citrus pickers of an impending strike. The union will exhaust every means to insure local hiring, he was quoted as saying, but except for that point, it will rely on negotiations with ranchers to gain fair wages.

J. C. ELECTS STUDENT BODY HEADS FRIDAY

Recovering from the excitement of its 11th annual Fiesta, Santa Ana Junior college was plunged deep into new campus activity today as campaigns for next year's student body officers got under way. The final election will be held Friday.

Fourteen students—led by Bill Twist and Jack Brounink, who will oppose each other for president—have announced their candidacy for various associated student posts.

Norma Daley, Josephine Butler and Merle Swingle have been nominated for secretary, and Rodney Eyr is still opposed for vice-president. Walter Swanberger, Roy Potter and Joe Thompson are in the race for treasurer.

Yell leader candidates are Russell Haney, Joe Allen and Al Clapper, and Maxine Wells and Bette Ann Munson are running for the song-leader position.

Candidates were to be introduced at a nominating assembly in the Willard auditorium today, and primary elections will be held Wednesday.

Santa Anan Hurt
Dewey Bankrud, 310 North Grand avenue, Santa Ana, sustained severe cuts and bruises when his motorcycle overturned near Bakersfield yesterday. He was brought back to St. Joseph hospital where he was reported recovering today.

Russia to Be Topic
"The Russian Family, Then and Now," is the topic of an address to be presented at the citizen's forum meeting tomorrow evening in the Unitarian church beginning at 7:45. The speaker will be Rosalie Libinzone, who formerly resided in Russia.

Riding the Beam!
Speeding through fog and darkness, the modern airliner is guided safely to its destination by the directional radio beam.

In guiding thinking men and women to greater financial independence and security, a growing Savings Account is not unlike the "radio beam." It provides safety and greater assurance of reaching the destination. Saving money is not difficult—it is simply a matter of habit. If you save REGULARLY, that's all you have to do to save successfully and build a substantial reserve of ready cash to meet expenses and provide pleasures.

Make WEEKLY deposits in an account at this bank and "ride the beam" to a goal of future comfort and security.

WESTINGHOUSE AIR BRAKE
It took a two-dollar magazine subscription in the hands of an inventive young man to create one of the greatest benefits of safety in railroad engineering ever achieved—the pneumatic air brake.

George Westinghouse was the young man. He was working in his father's shop one day, his mind preoccupied with an idea for stopping trains quickly.

Westinghouse considered and rejected almost every type of mechanical braking system that entered his mind. Thus occupied, he was approached by a young woman selling magazine subscriptions. He pulled two dollars from his pocket, and took a three-months subscription from her out of kindness. Some day, he felt, this good turn might be repaid. He scanned the sample magazine she had given him. Suddenly his eyes focussed on an illustrated article. It described the building of the Mont Cenis tunnel, then being drilled in Switzerland. The article said that compressed air was used to operate a rock-drill, 3000 feet distant from the compressor! Westinghouse was elated. Here was the very power he needed for his air brake!

In the autumn of 1868, not yet 22, Westinghouse and an assistant built a working model of his air-brake system. He persuaded the Panhandle railroad to allow him to make a demonstration. The trial was a success.

Graft in the Legislature

Legislators who are also lawyers and who use their legislative posts to further the interests of their clients for pay are an old, old scandal, probably as old as the republic itself.

The idea of the founders was that legislators should be, not professional politicians or statesmen, but substantial citizens active in ordinary pursuits in their home communities.

That is still the theory, and the pay of legislators, $100 a month, is less than enough to compensate an able man for the time taken from private business. Service is an honor and is supposed to attract men of honor who will look for their reward to self-satisfaction and the good opinion of their neighbors or to opportunities to serve in higher posts.

Lawyer-legislators are under greater temptation than others and it is harder for them to draw the line. For any lawyer with a considerable practice is likely to be called upon to act on legislation that will affect one of his clients. If he believes that his client is entitled to benefits provided by a pending bill, his dilemma is even greater.

To acknowledge this difficulty is not to condone the offense charged against certain members of the last legislature by Dist. Atty. Babcock of Sacramento county.

Any grand jury can draw the line between innocent benefit to a regular client in the course of a legislator's work and the acceptance of a fee for introducing or supporting or voting for specific measures.

And if Mr. Babcock can expose and punish this form of corruption he will deserve our gratitude. Just because the temptation and the practice are so common is all the more reason for fighting it and punishing the flagrant offenders. There has been enough talk of lobbyists and graft during recent sessions to alarm good citizens. Mr. Babcock's investigation was undertaken at the request of the legislature itself, following charges against certain members during closing days of the 1937 session.

Charges, of course, are one thing and their substantiation is another. Fortunately the sessions of the Sacramento grand jury are to be open, under an order by Superior Court Judge Lemmon that sets a valuable precedent.

Cops, Constitutions

Several senatorial gentlemen, looking into a certain phase of the Raymond bombing scandal in Los Angeles, are puzzled. They hope to find out just why a policeman should refuse to testify on important matters—on constitutional grounds that their testimony "might tend to incriminate or degrade" them.

Their problem—one vital to public respect for law—later may be to introduce legislation in Sacramento which will make policemen different from the ordinary citizen in that regard.

Policemen already are different. The courts have said so ever since 1892, up to and including the 1936 San Francisco vice graft inquiry. Dismissals of officers who stay silent when the community welfare is at stake have been upheld repeatedly.

Close-mouthed officers were discussed in the San Francisco case, the decision in which is reprinted in the current State Bar Journal. Judge A. F. Bray had this to say in sustaining dismissal of 11 former officers who "wouldn't talk":

"In the hands of a police officer is placed the protection of the community . . . based in considerable degree upon the respect which the community has for him. . . . By the action of one police officer in this respect, his brother officers are, in the eyes of the public, tarred with the same brush . . ."

"It is clear that a person who becomes a police officer gives up certain of his constitutional rights by reason of his very employment. The loss of these rights is necessary . . . to maintain the officer and the department worthy of the respect, support and confidence of the community . . ."

"He has a constitutional right to refuse to answer certain questions, but . . . no man has a constitutional right to be a policeman."

Zipper Marriages

Marriage isn't like a zipper sweater that you can slip off and on in a jiffy. That, at least, is the theory of Judge Robert Jones of Seattle, who refused a divorce to a couple who were married after a whirlwind courtship and who very shortly thereafter decided to go their separate ways.

"You'll have to stay married for one year from the time of your separation," decreed the judge, who is weary of having so many hastily-married couples apply for divorce in his court.

There's wisdom in the judge's action. The old theory of forcing ill-mated couples to spend their lives in misery together has been abandoned, of course. But by applying the brakes a little in granting divorces judges can impress men and women with the thought that marriage is more than a game; that it is a serious part of our national life, entailing responsibility to the state as well as the individual.

A general policy of refusing divorces for a year after the final separation might be worth consideration by the lawmakers of our various states.

NEW YORK. — Confidential memorandum from the general officer commanding the Duce Mussolini's invincible legions in Spain:

Duce!
As commanding officer of the irresistible hordes who have been enforcing your inflexible will in Spain I have the honor to submit to you the following memorandum on the practical lessons of the glorious events at Guadalajara which I trust I may, without immodesty, describe as the little Caporetto.

First, I earnestly recommend that in the interests of economy and efficiency, your invincible legions henceforth be armed with wooden or papier-mache rifles, tin pea-shooters or some other weapon of purely nominal type and of the cheapest materials and construction. The piece at present issued to your valiant black shirts is an expensive and dangerous encumbrance. It is too costly to be thrown away in vast numbers when your heroes start advancing to the rear with the utmost rapidity and too heavy to permit the development of maximum speed. Moreover, our enemies have not been above seizing them where they have been discarded and shooting our conquering legions in the rear—the act of a cowardly foe, to be sure, but characteristic of the disorderly rabble which still rejects the heroic glories of fascism.

Better Roads, Please

Second, I urge, oh, Duce, that our general staff begin experimenting with roads made of cork or some springy composition used in the construction of indoor running tracks. Runners performing on this type of track can save one-tenth of a second in every hundred yards. True, our contemptible enemies will try to treat our men as if they were running in hobbled field shoes of clumsy type, whereas I recommend that the servants of your irresistible determination be equipped with featherweight track shoes. Moreover, oh Duce, I propose that our engineers prepare a variety of invisible signs or markers to be posted at intersections along the line of our dashing charge to the rear. These signs, or markers, should read, "Il Duce's irresistible hosts went this way 10 minutes ago; weather clear, track fast; going like hell!"

Third, I strongly suggest, oh Duce, that there be issued to your victorious legions a stout but lightweight sheet of body armor to be worn inside the trousers, astern, as our favorite strategy exposes our heroes to wounds in this sector. Needless to say, it is bad for our prestige to have so many wounded going around wearing this portion of their anatomy in slings.

Fourth, oh Duce, I call attention to the fact that our comrades in the Rome-Berlin axis are now sitting right on top of us and that they are exceedingly tough mugs, who have sworn to annihilate all their minorities and therefore probably will steal back the 250,000 captive helmets in our Tyrol one of these days. When this happens your invincible ranks will not only need all their speed but should be provided with adequate springboard facilities at Brindisi, on the Adriatic, and at points on the Ionian sea. With proper facilities and adequate training they should be able to dive clear over into Albania or Greece or half-way to Libya in one graceful leap. Steps should be taken to teach them to shout jubilantly the victory cry of "Duce a Noi!" in mid-air as they execute this phase of their charge.

And, finally, oh Duce, I urge that you propose that your invincible legions be equipped with silent guns and shells, as the present equipment makes a terribly loud noise—"bang! bang! bang!" all the time—and makes your invincible legions so nervous that they are not able to do full justice to your inflexible will.

Levying a yearly tax upon state automobile owners of approximately $1,200,000 and providing a number of changing in the California automobile laws, the auto bill passed by the legislature is before Governor Johnson for approval. The law also changes the speed limit from 20 to 30 miles an hour on county roads and makes it a felony to drive a car of more than $300 value without the owner's consent.

WASHINGTON—President Wilson sent for Representative Sisson, Mississippi Democrat, today and urged him not to make any speech that will offend the sensibilities of Japan. Sisson, who recently made a "war speech," had given notice of his intention to speak in the house Friday on legal phases of the Japanese alien land question.

BERLIN—Fine weather was seen for the wedding festivities of Princess Victoria Louise, daughter of the German emperor and empress, and Prince Ernest August of Cumberland, which takes place Saturday.

Three hundred members of the county Christian Endeavor Union attended the annual picnic in the county park in Santiago canyon last Saturday. All sections of the county were represented as auto, buggy and wagon loads of picnickers poured the young people into the park.

The Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON — Agitation in congress regarding the so-called pro-fascist clique in the state department has focused attention on a condition which had existed, in one form or another, for years — namely, that wealth dominates the career service.

Career diplomats, for the most part, are men of tremendous wealth. The big bankers, the big meat packers, the big soap and drug manufacturers, the haberdashers all have sent their sons into career diplomacy, and to most of them that part of the United States west of the Mississippi is a vast unexplored desert.

Some of them also tend toward the views of Franco, Mussolini or Hitler even more readily than those of the man in the White House.

This is partly the fault of a rigidly enforced, which has refused to vote more money for a service that is grossly underpaid, partly the fault of the state department itself for not demanding more money. Leaders among the career diplomats at one time opposed salary increases because they wanted the service reserved only to men well cushioned with kale.

Today there is a group of younger men among the career diplomats, who bring in new ideas and new life, also there are at least some wealthy men in the state department who have kept their heads above water.

Fred Sterling, minister to Latvia, is related by marriage to the Joe Leiters, famous grain merchants of Chicago, who have nearly cornered the entire wheat market in 1938.

Grain, Furniture, Fruit Jars
Anthony Drexel Biddle, ambassador to Poland, is the former tennis star and member of the famous Biddle family which has run the Morgan banking firm in Philadelphia.

Robert Scotten, counselor of the embassy in Brazil, comes from a wealthy Michigan furniture family.

Alvin Owsley, minister to Denmark, is related by marriage to the Ball fruit jar family of Muncie, Indiana. A political appointee, his father-in-law recently gave $6,250 to "Rural Progress," violent anti-Roosevelt magazine.

The list could be continued far into the night. Many of the above men are able, all are charming, gracious hosts, know the right thing to do or say. But they have two great faults. They do not know their own country, therefore are anything but representatives of the people they are supposed to represent. Second, their economic environment usually puts them on the side of the Francos, the Mussolinis and the Hitlers, and some of them are extremely frank about admitting this.

Roosevelt has worked on the theory that it didn't make much difference who carried out his marching orders abroad, just so the right orders were issued from Washington. But the fallacy of this tactic has been discovered by more than one president.

Norman Armour, ambassador to Chile and former minister to Canada, also is a member of the meat-packing family bearing that name. He has, however, an excellent record.

Shirts, Soap, Cash Registers
William Phillips, ambassador to Rome and former undersecretary of state, also is related to the J. P. Morgan family. The cost of maintaining the American embassy in Rome, incidentally, is such that the ambassador must be a man of tremendous wealth.

Alexander W. Weddell, ambassador to Argentina, married Mrs. Virginia Chase Steedman, wealthy St. Louis widow, while she was on a world tour, and while he was consul general in Calcutta. Now he no longer needs to be a consul general.

Hugh Wilson, ambassador to Germany, and one of the chief pro-fascist friends in the service, is scion of the famous Wilson brothers shirt manufacturers in Chicago.

Alexander Kirk, counselor of the American embassy in Moscow, is scion of the family which originated Kirk's soap and other brands. Kirk is among the few who have kept their heads above water.

Ed Reed, counselor of the American embassy in Rome, also is a haberdasher. His family runs the Reed clothing stores in Philadelphia.

Jefferson Patterson, secretary of the American legation in Norway, is son of the National Cash Register family of Dayton, Ohio.

Henry Norweb, minister to Haiti, comes from a wealthy Cleveland family, chief owners of The Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Mailbag

Public opinion, or what somebody in office imagines to be public opinion, is our ruler. If public opinion is active, the politicians and people sit up and take notice. There is a definite need for outspoken talking and thinking on public matters. Honest, intelligent fair discussion of problems is immensely useful. So that every citizen may have his say and contribute to the formation of public opinion, The Journal invites letters to The Mailbag. Please limit communications to 350 words. The editor reserves the right to shorten all letters in excess of that length.

A WOMAN COMPLAINS

To the Editor: We women get the short end of it all the time, it seems.

I know of several young men, who finding the going tough in a world upset with economic upheaval, have joined the navy to see the world. Of course they have had to scrub decks, peel potatoes and other chores, but every one who has to make a living, has to work. No honest person objects to doing their share of the work.

I do wish the women who have wanderlust and seek adventure had something like the navy to join, which would be much more romantic than ending up on a WPA sewing project, making comforters for flood sufferers, or either case the government pays or maintains those working in return for services rendered — but think of the prestige of a sailor compared with that of a WPA sewer!

MRS. G. P.

What Other Editors Say

NO STYLE, NO WORK
At a time when people are stirred up over vast, world-shaking issues, it is somehow comforting to read about the strike of the seamen on the French liner Champlain.

These sturdy mariners rose up in protest—or, possibly just down—because they had been told by their employers had given them the wrong kind of uniforms. Their working clothes, they said, were the wrong shade of blue, and did not have stars on the sleeves. Because this was so they held up the vessel's scheduled sailing.

Now there have been strikes, disputes, squabbles and set-toes enough, in recent years, Heaven knows; some of these have involved seamen, protesting against the sailor's age-old lot of cramped quarters, hard work and bad food. But this is something different.

Here we see no hackneyed complaint of moldy salt beef, stuffy fo'c'sles or brutal first mates; no recital of dangers of gale, reef and shipwreck. Instead, it is something much simpler. The seamen's inalienable right to look picturesque has been infringed. Hence: Trouble.

Perhaps all of this isn't quite as mirthful as it may seem. For there are plenty of callings on this earth in which the right to look romantic and colorful is one of the principal incentives.

Who can doubt that the cowboy sticks to his job at least partly because of the figure which it permits him to cut. He may discard his flaring chaps for day overalls, he may leave his six-gun to rust on a shelf in the bunk house, he may even give up the traditional bandanna at the throat; nevertheless, he remains a person of infinite color and appeal, and he knows it—and that very fact has undoubtedly saved ranch bosses many a dollar in wages.

That the same thing is true of soldiers, of course, is self-evident. In piping times of peace, when enlistments lag, an army's first step is to devise gayer and trimmer uniforms. Soldiering is dull, monotonous work and the discipline is hard; what cares the recruit, if he can look the part of a natty, square-shouldered young hero.

Perhaps Robert Burns was only partly right when he says we do have a good share of that faculty of seeing ourselves as others see us.

We may get the picture out of focus pretty often, but we do remain conscious of the way we look to other people's eyes, and it means a lot to us.

Persuade a man that he looks like a fine fellow and a gay adventurer and he will take on almost any job and put up with almost anything. A blue uniform and stars on the sleeve can make up for a lot.—Merced Sun-Star.

Philosophy

This story, told me by Mrs. Frank J. Sprague, is about a boy who wanted to study electricity but didn't know how to go about it. There wasn't a school in the United States that taught electricity!

This boy's name was Frank J. Sprague.

Finally Frank discovered a man who was making a hand of this tangled thing, and he began studying with him. People laughed at the earnestness of this boy who wanted to work at something which had gone about as far as it ever could, anyway!

"Electricity is something you get when you rub a cat's fur," they said.

One day a street car with a span of horses passed Frank. The driver lapped the horses and the car rolled slowly on. The boy was struck by a most absurd idea. He could invent a machine which would pull that street car! When he told his idea, the people smiled kindly. The boy meant well. He kept right on with his foolish idea, putting into it every hour, and every penny possible.

The moment he had looked forward to all the years arrived when he was thirty. He had invented a car which didn't need horses, nor a cable. But he did need money to finance it.

The richest man in New York went to a flat-topped car which he had invented. He told the young man's eyes appealed to Jay Gould. He felt the power of his personality.

"I want to see your contraption with my own eyes," Jay Gould told Frank.

Gould was so busy that he had to set a Sunday for seeing the "contraption." Sprague took Jay Gould to a flat-topped car which he had invented. There were no sides or seats. But no matter, this was the greatest moment of his life!

Sprague turned a switch, the car shot forward. Jay Gould, caught unawares, snatched at the air, staggered off the car, and pitched off on his shoulder.

He got up, dusted himself off, mad as hops. "I'll have nothing to do with it," he stormed and marched away.

Frank had grit enough to plug away until he perfected his device, got a backer, and built the first commercial electric street-car line in the world—in Richmond, Va. It was an instantaneous success. In two years there were 200 cars on the United States with electric car lines.

Mr. Sprague died in 1934. He lies buried in Arlington Cemetery across the Potomac from Washington, D. C., where the United States government buries its soldiers and some of its great men.

Sprague made himself an outstanding success because he determined as a young man on what he wanted to do, and kept relentlessly at it.

Boys, decide what you wish to do, then bend every effort toward the end you have chosen. Do so conscientiously, then, sooner or later, some measure of success will be yours.
